

ENVOSORT'S PUBLIC SERVICE

At the hub of Bristol City Council offices is Corporate Mail Services, and at the hub of that vital department is a truly comprehensive range of both standard and customised Envosort equipment. The standard products notably are Flexibuild sort units, easily adaptable for size or layout, and Series 90 heavy duty benching – featuring steel frames and user-friendly tops. By any measure, the scale of mailing activity is very impressive. A fleet of six vans constantly link all of the Council's varied premises, to the extent of allowing just two minutes at each location. In turn, the Mail Services department is constantly involved with sorting and dispatching every type of item to all aspects of the City activities including internal departments, other Government offices, the 70 City Councillors and – as separate entity within the mailroom – all 200 schools via special colour-coded pouches.

Mail Services Supervisor Brain Gamble has a professional affinity with Envosort's expertise, as he observes "we have built up mutual experience with them, to the extent of designing equipment just for our needs, such as large, heavy duty trolleys with particular wheels for balance and comfortable tilting. Equally the modular sorting units allow for easy movement when necessary, as do the adaptable compartment depths. Being an essential public service everything must always happen properly and on time, and the Envosort equipment is literally made for the job and it's there for life.
